Town Council Met in Session Monday Evening

Tax Rate Was Set For This Year's Taxes

Town Council met in regular session last Monday evening with Mayor Sanger in the chair and councillors Willis, Shaw, Hope, Bucholtz, and Evans present.

Mr. Thos Fitzhugh made an offer of $95.00 for the city hall at south end, to pay same by drawing gravel to town streets at $1.50 a yard. The offer was accepted.

A letter was read from the Little Theatre organization asking for the use of the Little Theatre building to be used for School entertainments. The request was granted, provided that local organizations may get the use of the building.

A letter from J. O'Beirne was read for further investigation.

The utilities commission wrote approving of mill rate set by council.

Mr. McGimpsey appeared before council and complained of the lambs court being used next to his property on Broadway. He complained that language used, noise made and interference with his property on account of balls being on his property, was a nuisance to his family and requested that it be stopped. The matter was left to the Public Works Committee to report at next meeting.

A bylaw was passed setting the general rate at 25 mills, and 25 mills for school purposes; water frontage 10c per foot; 10% discount allowed on general school and water frontage if paid in full before Sept. 30th; 75% discount before Oct. 31st; and 25% before Nov. 30th.

The bylaw for the Social Service Tax Act was also passed setting 3 mills on the basis of an equalized assessment of all taxable land in the municipality to raise $210.00 as required by the act.

Accounts as passed by the finance committee were approved for payment.

There will be no need of a general election in Alberta if unity can be reached in the Social Credit party ranks. Premier Aberhart told the Edmonton Bible conference last Sunday.

An Improper Method

(The Hanna Herald)

Blanket debt legislation is ill advised unfair and harmful Alberta people need expect no permanent advantage from such laws. On the contrary they will do irreparable harm.

Most people are honest. The great majority of debtors want to pay. Alberta people are not the chiselers and defaulers that they now appear to be before the eyes of Canada and of the world.

There are a considerable number of Alberta farmers, however, who simply cannot meet their mortgage obligations. Bad crops and low prices over half a dozen years have robbed them of their earning power. These people must have special consideration.

The way Manitoba and Saskatchewan tackled the problem of farm mortgage indebtedness was reasonable and sensible. First they got the interest rate cut to six per cent, which is where it should be. Then they arranged with the lending institutions for adjustments in interest when arrears of interest had accumulated. This eased the debtors' name from the role of those in arrears and gave him a fresh start and a new encouragement.

In Saskatchewan alone fifteen million dollars were written off mortgage indebtedness through commutation co-operation, and a comparatively amount was relieved from debtors' back in Manitoba.

In Alberta today no debtor knows for sure whether he has been relieved of a cent of a cumulative indebtedness. Blanket debt legislation has been a curse rather than a blessing.

A man who can pay should pay. A man who can't pay should be helped. Blanket debt legislation does not work that way. A plan of compromise and adjustment does work that way. Alberta is not completely down and out—sunk for all time. This province can and will come back. The time will come when our farmers will again require credit. That is something our people should not forget.

So let us handle the present problem of debt in a reasonable sensible and decent manner. Let us follow sound British tradition and example. Let us forget 'his South American idea of default and blanket debt legislation. Such a move is a step in progressive human degeneration.

Insurgents Join With Opposition For Fall Inquiry

Premier Urges Delay Until Fall Session

Attempts of Hon W. A. Fallow Minister of Public Works to block a motion of J. J. Bowlen, Liberal house leader, to have the public accounts committee called Wednesday morning to investigate 1936 highway construction on the Edmonton, Millet and Jasper projects stirred up a storm in the Legislature Tuesday afternoon. Insurgent members advising to demand that such an inquiry should be held despite Premier Aberhart's plea that an evanescence be withheld until the department's season rush is over.

Mr. Bowlen's motion was amended by A. J. Hocke, Red Deer proposing that other projects be included in the scope of the inquiry and that the public accounts committee initiate the probe immediately after the next sitting of the house expected to be in the fall, according to a statement made by Premier Aberhart.

D. M. Duggan, Edmonton, objected to the house attempt to instruct the next session and Mr. Speaker ruled the amendment out of order, though permission was granted Hon L. C. Maynard to adjourn the debate before the decision was formally accepted.

Local Baseballers Organize For Season

Planning For Double Header Here July 1st

Local baseball boys met last evening and organized for the season. Elmer Congrave was elected Secretary, Treasurer J. J. Macrae, W. S. V. Parrish and J. Podesta managers.

Arrangements are under way for a double header here on July 1st, and other games during the season.

Dr Robinson Refused Road Work Enquiry

Said Would Not be Time In Present Session

Dr. Robinson, our local member in the legislature and chairman of the public accounts committee, has turned down the request from the Liberal leader for an investigation into cost of the Edmonton to Westlock highway. His reason for refusing was that there would not be sufficient time to do justice to an inquiry of this type in the short time which will be available before the house is prorogued.

Suggest That We Start a Park on Vacant Lots

Vacant Lot North of School Is One Mentioned

While walking down Third St with a few citizens the other evening the writer was halted front of the vacant block just north of the school and had his attention drawn to the fact that that block was an ideal spot for the town to lay out a park.

As the conversation proceeded the several suggesters harried out made us feel that it was just as easy as falling down a well, for the citizens of the town to make a park on that block if they only got together.

Among the suggestions were that many citizens could donate trees, carnations and lilac plants flowers etc in order to make a start. Another suggestion was that we put up a new swimming pool on this lot and take up the idea here.

It is to be said a fine location for a park as this big block is going to waste. With a proper start for laying it out there is no doubt that eventually, within a few years, we could have a nice little park that would be a credit to the town.

It is true that in the cities one will find intellectuals and competent exponents of art, music and the drama. But where did they originate? In a substantial percentage of instances, the farm or the small town home will be found to have given them birth and be the source of at least their early education. As this new country becomes more and more stabilized one finds an increasing number of students and groups from country polities exploring major areas at provincial and western music and dance festivals and others, where winners give city addresses, the credit should be given to the province or the small town school for the initial development of the talent that has blossomed.

The country resident lives close to nature and has as survival opportunity to study her manifestations. Indeed, to be successful, he must do this. He sits at the footstool of the greatest teacher mankind knows and contemplates the world as it is, without the narrow, self-centered, and false conclusions that he learns here he must apply to his own operations. For this reason, if for no other, the dweller in the open evolves a process of deep thinking and pursues his studies to a definite conclusion. Such habits are naturally applied to the problems in which he takes an interest, whether they arise from his own business or in the wider realm of economics and social affairs.

This is the underlying reason for the close approximation to unanimity which usually marks decisions at farmers' conventions when questions of broad policy are up for discussion. The delegates have invariably given the widest latitude to speakers before they have been asked to vote. And even now, when the delegates have come to a decision and know what price and cents in their own minds, have come to a decision and know what they want.

In the cities life follows an altogether different trend. It is true that in the old business the city man has to think things through, but when it comes to social and economic matters, the average man is more ready to accept the conclusions of others than to make his own. Not because he is afflicted with an inferiority complex but because, outside his own business, his interests are so diversified, that he spends little or no time attempting to solve questions of public policy to his own satisfaction. He spends a little of this and a little of that in the purchase of other titles of solidity.

MORTGAGE LOANS

TENS of thousands of Canadian farms and homes benefit from first mortgage loans made possible by the accumulated savings of Life Insurance policyholders.

For every borrower, there are six thrifty people who supply the necessary funds.

This fact affords a striking illustration of the "double duty" performed by Life Insurance dollars. Not only do they ensure financial security for the men, women and children of Canada, but they also help to build and finance their farms and homes.

Life Insurance companies exercise the greatest care in the selection of properties upon which mortgage loans are made. To safeguard the savings of policyholders, security of principal and interest is and must always be the first consideration.

THE YELLOW BRIAR

A Story of the Irish on the Canadian Countryside

By PATRICK SLATER

By arrangement with Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

The next spring William Marshall was 21, and his father set him up in life after the fashion of the times. For livestock, he received with his father's blessing a yoke of young oxen, a heifer, due to calve later, and an elegant pair of small pigs. His farming equipment consisted of a wagon and its contents. There were a few bags of seed wheat and oats, some millet and seed potatoes. For tools he had, among other things, a crooked saw, a rip saw, an auger, two cast hooks, logging chains, a ax, and a bag of ironmongery supplies. Early in the spring, his brother Maxwell went over with him, and the boys put in the first season's crop on the Marshall place. The cattle found good pickings in the old heaver meadow.

The large fallow of fallen trees was as dry as tinder. The lads made ready for the burning. Brush fire after were laid in a hundred places and flaming torches of dry cedar passed quickly through the fallow. Within half an hour the entire field was a roaring mass of crackling flames shooting up to the sky in sparkling cones of fire. Great columns of whirling black smoke rose to drift in clouds over the valley for miles around. The heat was intense. Flames lit up the sky throughout the night and for days afterward the fire growled and smoldered in the great hardwood trunks as it reduced them to powdery ashes.

Then the dirty work of clearing began. The field was an ash pit, with stumps sticking up to all directions and was littered over with half-burned logs and charred debris of the fire. The stumps could wait for a more convenient season. Scarred logs and great, cranky limbs were piled into fresh piles, with much prodding of the rump of the oxen, and the brandings were thus prepared for a fresh burning. Sadly great stumps on the young lads, who fought amid choking dust for every foot of farm land.

By the middle of May that spring the power went forth to sow on the Marshall farm. The oxen pulled a triangular drag with wooden teeth in and out amid the stumps, scattering the black, inviting earth. The wheat was sown broadcast; and the drag did what it could to harrow the seed in. The oats and millet were sown next—and the land loved them. It was a slow, laborious task splitting other cattle and fence-making to keep the cattle off the growing crops. And having done some of it myself, I speak with respect of the heart-breaking, back-burting job of creating lodged oats on a stumpy hill.

However, the harvest yielded two tidy stacks of grain; and they stood close to a log stable neatly thatched to keep the cattle and calf as snug the next winter as hogs in a rug.

In the fall of that year the first log-house was built on the Marshall farm, a one-roomed affair with a ladder to the loft; and it was up that ladder I climbed the first night I slept on the farm.

The Marshall place was a head of putting up the cabin. The shingles were cut on the job. Neighbors lent a hand at putting up the cabin. Later in the fall, before his brother left him, William Marshall took a week off and went out to look himself up a wife.

CHAPTER V.

William Marshall walked across country by way of Woodbridge to the home farm, on the old line of Markham; and thence, needed by an orchard, a warm welcome was awaiting him.

Four, simple Willie Marshall! He was not faring forth to court a girl he loved. The mating season of his life was upon him and was hurrying him out abutting a woman to wife. He knew nothing of this species, modern notion that a man is called to court because of the bewitchery of some woman's charms. Neither, perhaps, did he realize that a youth out wife-hunting is so patently a sign of the hands of the first woman he meets who is also making a life.

The mystery of sex influence, as of course, beyond the depth of a simple, old man, always hangs single; but somehow, old bachelors and bachelor girls spend a good deal of time musing on a subject about which they are supposed to know nothing. And why not? Religion, poetry and art are all saturated with delightful influences. Heavenly Father, what a waste of driven sense a careless life would be! The mystery of mating love may have its no feeding in the earth out of which all life comes, but a flower is unlike the soil out of which it grows. I have observed a dirty-mouthed young scoundrel struck as mute and helpless as any honest, inhibited lad by a ship of a girl with that bewitching and cheery white smile. I have also observed a hold, bad woman, like Emily O'Brien, fall desperately in love with a plain, pudgy little man.

and be as timid and bashful about her love as any innocent, sweet country maid.

Romantic love had little to do with human mating-making until a very recent date; and, even to-day, it seems to be, in the main, a home-smothering infection that catches the men and silly women after they drift into the dangerous age of the forties. There is always, in the main, a farm among the thirty rural class in Europe—and the lad and the lass are bound with the sword. Bonds and mortgages marry mortgages and bonds and the poor have always been lazy and listless in seeking for their mates. Marrying love is distastefully mercenary among the Irish on the old soil. Unless she has a couple of Kerry cows for the dowry the emotional Celt demands that his bride be strong in back and legs for the carrying of the creels of turf. And after the songs are sung and the speeches made, something more endearing than love sickness is required to keep a home fire burning brightly in cabin or hall. Love of man and wife is a more sturdy thing. It is a cherishing, unselfish affection that pits, in long suffering—and forgiveness. To make a happy household comes for weans and wife, that's the true pathos and sublime of human love.

The matter of finding a suitable wife for William became the subject of a long and frank discussion between the young man and his parents. The matter was canvassed most diligently in the evenings, in that dreary under-story in which folk discuss intimate things in the dark, after the others have gone to bed. Marrying may be made in heaven, but livable ones usually require the services of kindly matchmakers, who discreetly, about the young man's fancy in a direction where a suitable girl is quietly waiting for the likes of him. Now, setting up house-keeping on a bush farm requires more than the cabin and a bride. There is also the bed and bedding, and the kitchen and other household gear the right sort of a father-in-law gives his daughter on her going-out from home. Local prospects were canvassed carefully, but without the Marshall getting far in solving William's problem. After trial, had joined the Methodist community. It was at a camp meeting at Hogg's Hollow, in a season of power and glory, that he had been brought under the awakening of the spirit, and had made the subject of saving grace.

Universe Not Expanding

Light Rays Coming From Distant Stars Get Tired and Quit
Light rays coming from distant stars "get tired and quit," just as a human being does. Arthur Haas of the University of California has declared. Addressing the American Physical Society, Dr. Haas declared that this property of light means that the universe is not expanding, as some astronomers and physicists believe, but remains quite constant. Dr. Haas declared the light shifts because "photons" or particles of light, grow more and more tired until they eventually vanish.

What He Didn't Know

A gentleman in a bus was annoyed by the attentions of a fellow-passenger, who had been drinking, and was imparting various scraps of information in a dogmatic and aggressive manner.

Finally the gentleman said, "I am not interested in your information, unless you could tell me something I don't know."
"Sir?" cried the other, "I'll tell you something per day! know. My sister's your warhorse, and I'm wearing one of your skirts!"

The British yard was originally defined as the length of the arm of King Henry I, by royal decree.

"You say you sang at the Metropolitan Opera? What was the aria?"
"The thousand square feet."
